

Marriage Vows

The vows are the heart of the service, and the act that makes the marriage. The rest of the wedding amplifies your promises made to each other. The pastor does not marry you; you marry each other with your vows.

You must be comfortable with the words you speak; they must be honest and from your heart. Marriage vows are life-long and this indication of faithfulness is essential.

What follows are some options for you to consider. You may rearrange phrases and change words. You do not necessarily have to speak the same vows to each other. You can repeat your vows after the pastor, read them from an index card, or memorize them. Give your selection in writing to the pastor two weeks before the wedding.

I take you _____, to be my wife/husband from this day forward, to join with you and share all that is to come, and I promise to be faithful to you until death parts us/as long as we both shall live.

_____, I give myself to you as your wife/husband

and these things I promise you:

I will be faithful to you and I will be honest with you;

I will respect and trust,

help and care for you;

I will share my life with you;

I will forgive you as we have been forgiven;

I will join with you to better understand ourselves, the world, and God,

through the best and worst of what is to come

as long as we both shall live.
